WILSON ATTACKED IN RING SALE TALK

Called a "Provincial Professor Who Doesn't Know What the War Is About."

What started out as a perfectly mild and neutral sale of rings from the trenches last night at the Cosmopolitan Club, 135 East Fortleth Street, gave signs of ending in something much presiding speaker, denounced Woodrow Wilson as a "provincial professor, who, n the back of his own mind, doesn't now what the war is about."

"The one thing we can do to counteract the disgrace cast upon us as Americans by the stand taken by the President in his recent message is to help in some such cause as we are doing to-night," declared Mr. Chapman greater part of the roomful of men and women, many of whom were people of social prominence.

The President walked over to the building through a snow flurry. Mr. Daniels had arranged to see him concerning the building of the two battleships authorized by the last Congress. The President wanted to discuss the naster to-day, and instead of summoning Mr. Daniels to the White House, chiose the quicker and less formal way. President Wilson left to-night for Columbus, Ohio, where be will deliver two addresses and attend a reception at the state Capitel building to-morrow. The President's first speech, to be delivered at a noon luncheon before the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, will be devoted to business. The other, building through a snow flurry. Mr.
